American REPORT review of religion and american power

American Report examines the moral issues of war, peace and social justice raised by the misuse of American power at home and abroad.

Our own independent worldwide news sources provide factual reporting and insightful commentary, often at great risk and in the face of official silence: courageous investigative journalism.

As the first national newspaper of responsible dissent, in the form of a weekly tabloid, American Report explores the real relationships between American power and the moral imperatives of a truly free and equal society.

American Report —

- Criticizes the "arrogance of power" in all its forms, confronting political leaders with the practical consequences of their policies and platforms;
 - Informs subscribers of the best and most current thinking of recognized spokesmen for peace, including responsible counter-arguments to the military-industrial establishment, and the positive statement of new values and social goals;
 - Surveys the range of social, cultural, economic and political problems and opportunities in the US and the Third World, pinpointing ways for readers to become engaged in a common struggle;
 - Reports specific activities of socially concerned organizations nationally, serving as the communications nerve center of the movements for peace and justice.

Contributors to American Report show a rich variety of viewpoints and backgrounds. Some have personal knowledge of life under the rain of American bombs, others are the originators of important peace initiatives . . . all are highly readable and relevant.

Our readers write . . .

To me the valuable thing about American Report is that it gives the other side of the news—that is to say, the side that seldom gets published.

Robert McAfee Brown

Constant help . . . civilized and yet tough.

James P. Shannon

American Report is the best way I know how to reassure my friends in Latin America as to the American people and the system in which they live. Your magazine is among the finest examples of responsible dissent.

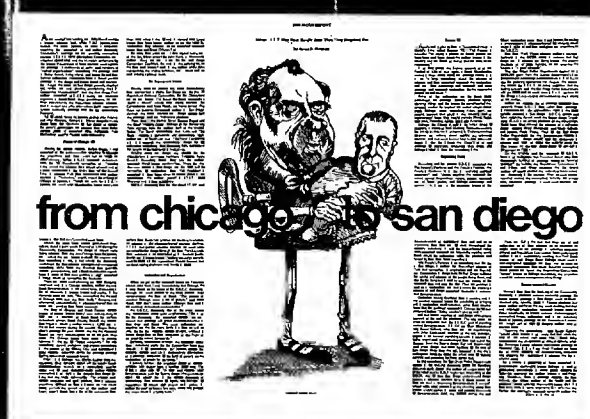

Ivan Illich

It does provide in one place more material than I find elsewhere on the war in Indo-china, other foreign policy issues that are related to the war, what is happening in other Asian countries, and ecumenical responses to this complex of issues.

John C. Bennett

For all the news that's fit to print—check out the New York Times. What's more important is to be a regular reader of one of the few papers fit to print the news, that's American Report!

Dick Gregory

American Report delivers "the other half of the news" in highly readable style. Typical articles taken from recent issues include the following, many of which cover vital issues not reported elsewhere:

REVIEW OF RELIGION AND AMERICAN POWER

637 WEST 125TH STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10027 212-749-5700

Dear Peacemaker:

The weapons in the arsenal of peace are frequently no more than good intentions and good will. AMERICAN REPORT, the publication of Clergy and Laymen Concerned, suddenly changes all that. Now, with a subscription to this one weekly newspaper, you have available a whole battery of proven "peace aids" to help you as a citizen, as an activist, or as an organization leader.

First, AMERICAN REPORT plugs you into a national communications network focussed on the aims, programs, activities and results of peace organizations. Hundreds of them: local, state, regional, national and international. Clergy and Laymen Concerned has concentrated on communications for peace and is in a unique position to report who is doing what.

Then there is AMERICAN REPORT's unmatched coverage of the continuing war, and efforts to stop our involvement in it -- such as the campaign now being mounted against Honeywell to get out of the manufacture of anti-personnel weapons. These are activities in which you will want to do your share. You can't, unless you know about them, and whom to contact to take part.

A subscription to AMERICAN REPORT will automatically bring you up to date on the important new "Unsell the War" campaign, which has received the dedicated support of people in advertising and the media. Your voice can be heard more effectively using "Unsell" materials in your community. They are professional, persuasive and proven in use!

Your reading will tell you how to play your part in bringing the peace message to thousands of local radio listeners, by supporting "American Report Radio" -- an exciting venture that can fight war lies and change minds about the war. You and your friends, through the right steps taken locally, can get this program on the air in your community.

Finally, your subscription puts you in touch with the special Literature Services of Clergy and Laymen Concerned, where you can purchase inexpensive pamphlets and other study materials, singly or in bulk, for use in leafletting campaigns, study-ins, personal reading and local events.

Beyond all these special services to peacemakers, AMERICAN REPORT is a first-class newspaper, bringing you the "other side of the news" not only about the war-and-peace issues but also Third World development, corporate responsibility, free speech, racial justice and a wide variety of social concerns.

To introduce you to AMERICAN REPORT, we are offering new subscribers a choice of a free book on a topic of interest to them ... amnesty, theology of liberation, or America's political refugees abroad. You'll find each described on the enclosed flyer, along with a brochure on American Report coverage, contributors and comments.

A subscription to AMERICAN REPORT costs only $9.00 per year. Remember, this is for a weekly!

Send in your order to AMERICAN REPORT today, and show them what a Peacemaker can really do, when he's got all the tools of the trade.

Sincerely yours,
